INTRODUCTION

Humanity has been able to survive great catastrophes throughout its history: floods, epidemics, wars, etc., but now it is facing even worse situations than those it has previously lived through: climate change, tsunamis, viruses, great wars, massive extermination, atomic arsenals, bacteriological wars, contamination, etc. There is thus a great difference between the past and the present; those we must now deal with have been caused by Man and are big enough to wipe the human race off the face of the Earth.

Economically we are in the process of the collapse of the Mass High Consumption Society, which W.W. Rostow considered to be the Fifth Economic Stage of Humanity. This collapse was predicted in 1985 in my book on Macroeconomics, so that it cannot be regarded as fortuitous, and has probably been deliberately caused to avoid a greater evil. We can also see that we have no idea how to cope with this situation or what its global consequences will be.

Macroeconomics. p. 358: “...However, there is a general agreement on the following: if the present tendencies continue, the global economic structure will collapse in the middle of the 21st century....”.

Consequences for human life

All the above makes those who can find no escape feel sensations of desperation, fear and impotency. The politicians are out of their depth and helpless, religions only give apparent shelters to their own, social organizations only attend to their members and religious sects deceive their followers. Many are those who seek, and many find relief in social groups, but only a few are aware of the deception and go on looking.

In the present situation everything is confused: the drug dealers are pursued when the problem lies in the demand for drugs; there are more and more weapons of mass destruction in the race to be the strongest nation, no one puts their trust in corrupt politicians, husbands and wives are at loggerheads, depressions cannot be cured, people are becoming more self-centred and prefer surfing the Internet to meeting their friends.

We must find a way out of the present situation

As happened in the four previous Historical Stages, we must get away from this wholly destructive situation, but to do so it will be necessary to create a new perspective of thought to guide us on our way to the Sixth Historical Economic Stage of Humanity, which I call the Cosmosociety.

This book is aimed at everybody, but first of all at those who are seeking but cannot find. Their hearts contain the petals of a flower waiting to be pollinated so that their fruits can be offered to the whole of Humanity. I know this is an enormous task, but it is necessary, not only to survive but to create the Cosmosociety that we all have within us. Let us give it the kiss of liberation.

≈ Let us aspire to the new Cosmosociety

The Cosmosociety will not simply be a renewal of our present society, but will be the experience we aspire to from the bottom of our hearts, as the expression of the deepest human sentiments. This is what we really aspire to and what we are looking for. But this too we reject, because we do not believe it is possible. Now is the historic moment to achieve it and fulfil our aspirations for a different life.

We will have to change our present demands from life, and this will need a Revolution of Consciousness. We cannot go on feeling and thinking as we have been doing up to now because this is the reason why we are going astray. If things go on as they are or if we try to make changes with our present way of thinking we will continue to go astray even faster, and this is in fact happening. Our acts are the result of the way we think.

We cannot therefore use for this our past experience of systems of thought, which have been eroded by time or have disappeared. We must open ourselves up to the purest and most original springs possible. To get out of the present situation, after it collapses, we must now lay the foundations of the original thought that will make it possible. We need to purify our minds to reach the Cosmosociety.

For this we will base our aims on the most original springs of thought conceivable, the Alphabet of Thought, which has already been discovered and is on offer in this book. It will guide us on our way; but let us also remember the words of the Spanish poet Antonio Machado: “Traveller, there is no road; the road is made when you walk”.

≈Existence of the Alphabet of Thought

There is something universal that is made manifest in the different cultures in different places throughout History and which must be discovered, in order to find what we are looking for, to harmonise life on Earth.

We find that the following cultural manifestations have been repeatedly given in time and space: ideals are believed in, emotions are experienced, teaching exists, art is conceived, silence is resorted to, governments are elected, there are religions, knowledge is accumulated, armies are formed, judgements are created, etc.

The existing common and universal phenomena are also reflected in the great diversity of languages whose words all refer to the same common thoughts. The same thought-objects are formed, for example, by the following words: libro, book, livre, das Buch and kniga.

If we can imagine a meeting of people of different nationalities, when a Spaniard says “libro” only those who speak Spanish will associate the same thought-object. The others will only hear a vibrating sound that will mean nothing to them. This vibration will be different to the sound of “book” but in both cases the vibration of the thought-object in the mind is the same.

The same thing happens with the sentiments and emotions felt by hominids in different cultures, which also coincide, even though expressed in different words, and with all new concepts that appear in all languages.

As throughout history there have been dictionaries that translate words from one language to another, it can be said that in all cultures common basic thoughts have appeared, expressed in other words. And it is something marvellous to discover them because they allow one to really feel a member of the human species of planet Earth.

The something that exists and generates basic common thoughts is the manifestation of the universality of the Alphabet of Thought. The existence of this original conception is reaffirmed by the fact that there has been a constant search for something universal throughout the History of Humanity, and even though different approaches have been used, their conceptions coincide, as we shall see in the examples given below.

≈The search for the universal

The different mythologies and religions speak of God or the All that cannot be conceived by knowledge and finally rests or remains “hidden”: Uranus in Greek mythology, the Creating Biblical God, the Hindu Nirguna-Brahman, etc. All of these show notable coincidences “beyond” time and space as we know.

Science also tries to find that which for it is the All, starting from the multiplicity that exists in the Universe of Objects. It tries to discover the general laws of the Universe of Ideas that lead to other original laws such as: Numerical Spaces, Big-bang, Superstrings, etc. Although limited rational knowledge is used for this, it opens the way to systemic and chaotic thought.

As we see, the constant search for the universal throughout History has been given diverse names, but is always essentially the same. Leibnitz and Ramón Llull, on the other hand, looked for it under this very name of the Alphabet of Thought.

Scientific confirmation of the Alphabet of Thought

Although the model provided in this book has a different conception to that of the recent Physical Theory of Superstrings, it possesses the basic coincidences. This theory states that the world we know proceeds from the waves emitted by vibrating strings of an Original Circle whose vibrations generate all the particles that exist. For this theory to be verified there must be 11 universes corresponding to each of the vibrating arcs that we can see in Figure 1-1 below.

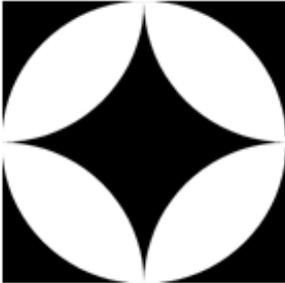

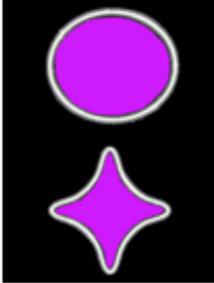

We can thus see it as an “Original Circular Musical Instrument” which we call here the Alphabet of Thought, which emits the essential vibrations that generate everything that exists by means of the arcs or musical strings of which it is composed.

This conception is directly revealed here as being independent of the Superstring Theory. We can also say that the essential vibrations emitted by the cords are also expressed in the Human Consciousness by means of the alphabetic thoughts, or basic common thoughts, which generate everything that exists and everything we think.

CIRCULAR IMAGES WITH THE GENERATING ARCS OF THE ESSENTIAL VIBRATIONS OF THE ALPHABET OF THOUGHT:

- . This is my intuitive image of four-dimensional space (1994).
- . It also appears in Chladni's figures.
- . It is an ornamental motif in brane tessellations on the floor of the Sistine Chapel, also in monasteries.

Generating Vibrating Circle, according to the Superstring Theory; (I knew it in 2005). Coincides with the other image and supposes there are 11 dimensions ($11 \times 2 = 22$), as we shall see in the AT.

THE ARCS OF THE ORIGINAL CIRCLE GENERATE THE VIBRATIONS OF THE AT.

Contains a televised interview (2005) on the Superstring Theory. It shows: the analogy between the AT and this theory and the generation of branes and Multiverses by the above figures.

We shall discover that there are 22 essential vibrations corresponding to the 11 dimensions of the Superstring Theory, considering also their opposites: $2 \times 11 = 22$. We shall see that the number π is the composer of the music that “is heard” in the essential vibrations of the Alphabet of Thought. The four Parts of this book contain the explanation of all we have said so far.

Part 1: the Alphabet of Thought.

1. Original Chaos, Natural Chaos and Human Chaos

The idea of Chaos, of which we shall give only a general idea, has been introduced into the study of social order in order to understand human behaviour.

We shall briefly refer to the notion of Chaos to describe the disordered social deviations that must be corrected.

2. The Simplicity of the Numbers and the Alphabet of Thought

The numbers are associated with the Alphabet of Thought. We thus offer some simple explanations of their significance and importance. The basic number that gives rise to the Alphabet of Thought is the number π .

If we really want to understand the world, numbers must be as dear to us as friends. We must remember that Humanity has conceived Gods, Doctrines and Scientific Theories associated with numbers such as the following: 1, 3, 7, 10, 12 and 22.

3. Cultural deviations and the 22 alphabetic thoughts

This section has two objectives:

*Proclaim the need for a profound cultural revolution due to the numerous social deviations around us.

*To make the reader familiar with the 22 alphabetic thoughts on which his thoughts are based.

As with someone who knows music, besides hearing the same as everyone else, he perceives the vibrations of all the notes, which are analogous to the 22 alphabetic thoughts.

4. Manifestations, Proofs and Applications

Even though the reader has now been introduced to the Alphabet of thought, to widen his understanding we will provide examples of its manifestation, proof and application in different personal and social situations.

5. Vision in the Alphabet of Thought

The 22 essential vibrations of the Alphabet of thought that generate the Universe have been inculcated into the human consciousness throughout evolution in the form of 22 alphabetic thoughts. The effective behaviour of the diverse hominids, almost exclusively rooted in terrestrial phenomena, has been gradually distorted it from its original form. We must therefore recover its original purity and see it as it really is.

Part Two: the Revolution in Consciousness

Human consciousness has lost its way and is not reflected in the mind with the same pure influence as the Alphabet of Thought. Life is thus aimless and we can see no horizon. The hominids can find no solution for their problems in their own minds because this is where the problems have come from.

A Revolution in Consciousness is needed to get back to our pure origins and put our lives back on the right course. We can use as a guide the previous social divergence, which we have related to the 22 alphabetic thoughts. We shall refer to them again in this Second Part, as we obtain better insight into the Alphabet of Thought,

Part Three: Purification of the Mind

The Alphabet of Thought generates and makes possible the Revolution in Consciousness that leads to the Cosmosociety reached by the Purification of the Mind.

This is the only way we can satisfy our aspirations to happiness and enjoy our lives on this cosmic Earth and is what life on Earth is demanding from us. We must remember that we are not only Earth, but also Cosmos.

We have to see and accept that "Homo sapiens" present way of thinking is both inherently contaminated and contaminating and is in such a bad state that it can only lead to massive destruction, as many actually foresee. We must therefore purify our minds in order to survive and continue as a species.

The Third Part suggests diverse well known methods of Purification that have already been tried, and includes a large number of questions and answers with two objectives: to better understand the nature of the 22 alphabetic thoughts, and aid in the Purification of the Mind that will open the way to the Cosmosociety.

These lines explain the courses of action necessary for the evolution of Mankind, and are an imperative of the paradigm explained in this book. Only in this way can we create the new society that almost everybody longs for.

Part Four: Cosmosociety

Although there have been many revolutions throughout the History of Humanity, they always fail because they take the form of reforming the existing system, so that the underlying problem remains unsolved. One way of thinking is replaced by another similar way of thinking and it all happens all over again.

This book is not revolutionary; it does not aim at improving or modifying the cultural thinking of the present system. It is “transgressor” because it reveals the way to go beyond this culture we know, in which we live somewhat erratically. Our society is destroying itself and what we need is not an improved version of it, but the new Cosmosociety described in this Fourth part.

We can wait no longer; we must act now because western culture is sinking fast and dragging the Earth with it. It is no longer possible to hide oneself in one’s private affairs in the hope that the politicians will solve all our problems, when all they do is create more. They are completely overwhelmed and powerless!

Causes come before effects

I believe that this future destiny can be avoided and this is why warnings are being given to human minds, such as the one given in this book. The transformation that society needs has to be done by society itself, but this rebirth must include all Humanity.

In our actions, we base this behaviour on the knowledge of the desired effects in the future, prior to establishing in the present the necessary causes by which these effects will be produced. In other words, knowledge of the effects comes before the causes.

This book is a necessary cause in the present for the desired effect to occur of human life continuing on Earth in the future. Universal Intelligence is revealing to us now the transforming cosmic cause in the form of the Alphabet of Thought.

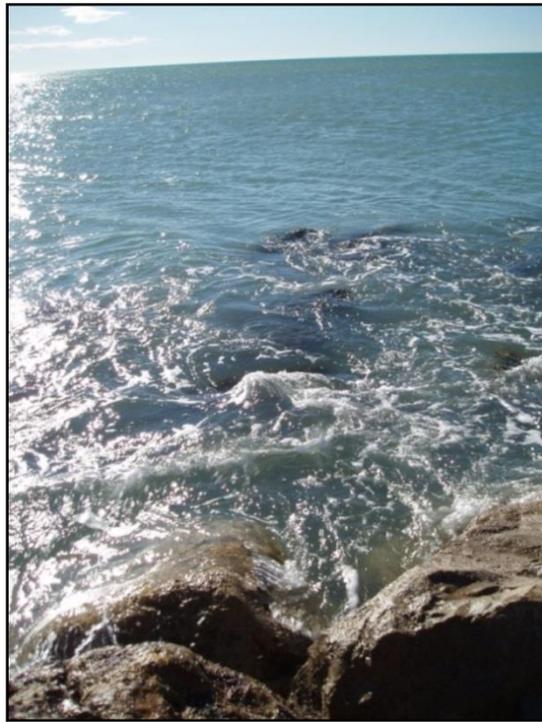

We must listen to this message without getting involved in absurd squabbles. We must avoid making the mistake of the hares in Samaniego’s fable, who sat down to debate whether the approaching dogs were greyhounds or bloodhounds, until they were all devoured while still discussing the issue.

Used in university lectures

The precedents on which this book is based have been used as the basic bibliography for the optional university subject. I gave this class in my last years as a lecturer, with 4.5 credits, and received the congratulations of the Rector for its excellent reception among the students

The University is where are formed the future leaders who will be able to transform society, although they will have to go beyond the knowledge they have been given. It is essential that our future leaders should learn to reflect while they are still young and have time to do so.

↑ The true peak of the mountain is the effort you have to make to get there.⇒

When you read this book you will leave behind the waters that swirl around in the pools of the solid rocks, which represent our minds clinging to the safe ground of the known and familiar. The lingering whirlpools, we see forward, remind us of the fears that hover around us when we want to go beyond we already know.

As if it were a revolution of thought, one floats on the small waves that follow, which are helped on their way by the wind blowing from the shore. The revolution of thought will remain there, without going beyond, since physically only the waves move, while the water remains in the same place.

Everything invites us to go beyond that revolutionary attempt. We must jump from one to another of the waves, which are formed on the water, on our way towards the horizon lit up by the rising Sun.

That is the path we must follow to reach the Cosmosociety.
